

Shot in Jackson County, Three Billboards Outside Ebbing, Missouri is a dark comedy in which a mother makes a bold move in challenging the local police department and its revered chief of police to solve the case involving the murder of her daughter. The film's director, Martin McDonagh, is known for several other popular Hollywood films. The film also features big name stars, such as Woody Harrelson, Frances McDormand, Sam Rockwell and Peter Dinklage.

Sweeping every major Hollywood award ceremony, and racking up more than two dozen awards, the buzz continues to grow for the nationally-acclaimed dark comedic drama, Three Billboards Outside Ebbing, Missouri.

Those who have seen the movie might recognize the fictional town of Ebbing Missouri and think it shares a striking resemblance to our mountain town of Sylva, NC. They would be spot on! Sylva was the primary filming location for "Three Billboards," and from May 2-21, 2016 downtown was transformed to become the town of Ebbing, Missouri.
